

Week 1

1.14.2023

After a hard week of prototyping and deliberating, each subsystem group presented their ideas to the team. There was some excellent discussion about robot integration and how each component would fit together.

We haven't quite reached a decision on one design, but we're getting closer every day. Soon, we should be able to officially start building.

On the business side of things, team shirts are almost done! Our signature flannels have been ordered and winter hats are in the making.

